MEDICAL.

view of the rainy season this Spring, hence thereof, it is reasonable to suppose the health of the country will to a considerable extent suffer from the pestilential malaria or fever, which state of affairs will naturally produce certainly and without fail in some one disease so common during the Summer few years, yearly becoming more and more, and if not yellow fever, cholera in place, to say nothing of the many yellow fever and fever and ague, which share of victims for the grave.
The true course to pursue is certainly a strict observance of the laws.
